Introduction/ Preamble

Don Bosco Institute of Technology is committed to creating a culture where every employee thrives. At DBIT, gender diversity is intense to our success. We believe that diversity in every aspect — including of thought and experience — creates a stronger workforce and promotes creative, innovative thinking.

“Only Diversity in Gender is not focused, but in every form of diversity.” At DBIT, when we search for creamy layer of candidates we encourage diverse and leadership traits among students. We motivate talent within DBIT by striving for gender equality and generating inclusive thinking from the top down, and we give our employees the freedom to develop innovations that can make the impossible possible. Engaging everyone in our workforce, and having leadership that represents the people in our communities, creates a culture where every employee can thrive.

Our organizational framework and employee resources sustain long-term commitment from our employees, and ultimately long-term value for our business.

Don Bosco Institute of Technology has developed programs, established policies, and set statistical benchmarks to reach better gender diversity and equality.

The Speaker has organized a video on this event which had a significant message and a powerful one, to motivate women. Her speech started with various by quoting the influential women leader in the world and their quotes.

Despite black women's status as the fastest-growing group of entrepreneurs, those of us in that community still face some of the biggest challenges. The American Express report, for instance, found that, "The gap is widening between the average revenue for businesses owned by women of color and those owned by non-minority women."

Here's where Oprah comes in: After a month of celebrating our racial and ethnic history, there's no better point to share the three key teachings from this media powerhouse that stand the test of time. These teachings are what set Oprah apart, and are what I believe can forge the difference between women who have a successful revenue-generating business -- and those who don't.

Objectives and Learning Outcomes

The seminar aimed at Gender Equality: Achieving Women's Rights and create awareness on their hidden leadership qualities. The Gender Equality campaign brings together people from different age, ethnicity, race, religion of this nation that will create the more women leader to the world. Her talk focuses on the fact that it is the time to get more women leaders, understand their challenges and focus on women's leadership attributes and gender equality. She has given an idea on women empowerment.

- “Everyone can be a leader. Leadership is inbuilt.”
- Understand one's leadership attributes
- Do a self SWOT analysis
- Know yourself better

Also dealt on how to overcome the family and work life stress through meditation , vacation etc. which helps to reduce Stress, practise right life style maintain good health and spread positivity. She also motivated with the real stories of women leaders who took great struggle to reach their dreams.

She also shared her thoughts on bringing an Presentation on Famous Women Leaders and encourage the students to become one of the better women leaders for tomorrow. She also gave insights about various women's federations which works for the empowerment of the women such as Federations and Associations, National Alliance of Young Entrepreneurs, India Council of Women Entrepreneurs, New Delhi, Association of Women Entrepreneurs,
